- ☐ .Southern states wanted to include enslaved people toward the population count for representation
- ☐ Northern states wondered why enslaved people couldn't be counted as property.
- ☒ Many Northern states threatened to leave the convention over this issue. ✓
- ☐ The decision to count enslaved people reflected the "mixed"-nature of how they were viewed
- ☐ The law treated them as property. and persons since their lives were "protected" by their "masters".
- ☐ This compromise gave the South more representation in Congress and increased power to spread the institution of slavery.

✓ Which of the following is FALSE? *

1/1

- ☐ Tariffs are taxes on imported goods.
- ☐ Tariffs can be used to protect businesses from foreign products as well as to encourage manufacturing within a country.
- ☒ Southern states wanted nationwide tariffs on the import of manufactured goods. ✓
- ☐ The North wanted to place protective tariffs on raw materials to raise money for the government.
- ☐ The Southern states did not want the new national government to be able to regulate trade and commerce.

✓ Which of the following is FALSE? *

- ☐ Southern states were worried that the new government would regulate the slave trade.
- ☒ The North depended on cheap imported manufactured goods (tools, textiles). ✓
- ☐ Tariffs would make imported goods more expensive.
- ☐ The South was worried about taxes on exported raw materials, like cotton and tobacco

✓ Which of the following is FALSE regarding a compromise between North and South during the Convention? *1/1

- ☐ The North "received" an inclusion in the Constitution that the new national government regulated interstate (between states) and international trade.

- ☐ The South was happy that the new Constitution included a fugitive slave clause.

✓ Mark all the arguments that an Anti-Federalist would make. (Pick TWO) * 1/1

- ☐ A bill of rights is unnecessary because the powers of the government are limited..
- ☐ A bill of rights would give the impression that the people could only expect protection of those rights that were actually listed
- ☐ A strong executive branch is necessary for the national government to be able to fulfill its responsibilities.
- ☒ The Constitution gives too much power to the executive branch of government. It would soon become a monarchy. ✓
- ☐ The best way to protect against factions taking over the government, is to have LOTS of interest groups. In this way, no one group becomes too powerful.
- ☒ The national government would be located too far from most people's communities to allow them to participate. ✓

✓ Mark all the arguments that an Anti-Federalist would make. (Pick TWO) * 1/1

- ☒ People who are not too rich or too poor are more likely to possess civic virtue and to agree on what is best for their common welfare. ✓
- ☒ The necessary and proper clause is too general and, as a result, gives too much power to the national government. ✓
- ☐ The civic virtue of the citizens had not been enough to prevent them from seeking their own selfish interests rather than working for the common welfare.
- ☐ The Constitution provides adequate protections for the state governments to prevent their being destroyed by the national government.
